Navigating Your ROUTE to Sexual Integrity

How do we work toward lasting life change?

Repentance: We reject the behavior that has disrupted our lives by separating ourselves from it and, to the best of our ability, removing the opportunity to return to it. John the Baptist said that followers should have, "Works worthy of repentance."

Order: We establish and implement a set of daily disciplines and develop relationships with mentors and others who share our vision.

Understanding: We gain insight into the nature of our personal wounds and the full effects of our sexual sin. We battle against our flesh, a sensuality-oriented world, and a true enemy of our souls, the devil.

Training: While we often have "tried" to change this area of our lives, it is time we "train" with intentionality. Life change is not an accident nor a random by-product of good intentions. "Run the race as one who wants the prize."

Endurance: We implement life-long disciplines for maintaining purity even when we're ready to give up and give in. As we experience sexual integrity, we develop an intimate sense of God's calling and purpose in all areas of our lives.
